The dream roadmap of the space and planetary sciences section 2020 includes a variety of plans, including large-scale projects such as planetary exploration missions. As a result of many people to achieve these dreams, some of them are in the process of being realized, and some of them have almost been realized. On the other hand, over time, some have been critically reconsidered, and new dreams have emerged. Considering these developments, we are working to revise the dream roadmap of the space and planetary sciences section. We would like to collect new dreams and refine existing plans again to make it an attractive dream roadmap.
