1. Institute of Science Tokyo

In large-scale, interdisciplinary scientific meetings such as the Japan Geoscience Union (JpGU), providing opportunities that foster interaction across the diverse backgrounds of participants is essential for the continued growth of the community. For this reason, a banquet has been held each year during the meeting to encourage active exchange among participants.

In addition, as this year's meeting is jointly held with the American Geophysical Union (AGU), we aim to further promote academic integration and development by hosting the event at Hotel the Manhattan / Primavera, offering an enjoyable and inclusive environment for all participants.
